

KSP offering reward for Barnes Mt. theft suspect

By WHITNEY LEGGETT
CV&T News Editor

Kentucky State Police are asking for assistance in finding an Estill County man wanted for a burglary on Barnes Mountain Road. KSP Trooper Scott Felder said a $500 reward is being offered to anyone who can provide information that would lead to the arrest of Frankie Scott Young. Young, 43, is wanted in connection with a burglary that took place in late May. According to the arrest warrant, Young entered a home on Barnes Mountain Road through the basement door. He allegedly stole 14 guns, a 55" television and other household items from the property. Felder said he would consider Young to be armed and dangerous "considering the number of guns he took from the home."

One of the victim's guns was recovered at Wade's Pawn Shop in Madison County by KSP. Young also returned to the home and stripped the wiring from the walls. Some of the wire was recovered from C&S Recycling. Other items stolen from the home were found in the woods and other locations on Barnes Mountain. Other items recovered include a Salamander heater, Troybilt rototiller, jewelry, knives, antique railroad lights and a gas grill. The victim has been able to identify the gun and wire as those taken from his home. Estill County Sheriff's Deputy Karl Rifenbark has been assisting in the investigation. Rifenbark has been able to trace the recovered items to Young, according to the warrant. Felder said KSP has received several tips regarding Young's whereabouts and each time they attempt to make an arrest, his location changes. Young is described as a white male. He is approximately 5'10" and 150 pounds. Once arrested, he would be charged with first degree burglary. If you have any information regarding Young's whereabouts, contact Felder at 859-623-2404 or Rifenbark at 723-2323.

Local group looking to Revive River Drive with event

"You've got to start somewhere. We're hoping eventually there could be something more because of this."
-Nivra Lainhart

By WHITNEY LEGGETT

It's not uncommon to drive down River Drive late in the evening and find that your car may be the only one on the road. The businesses close and most of Estill County begins to look something like a ghost town.

A group of citizens remember a time when life in Irvine and Ravenna was just they opposite and have set out to bring a little life back into the town. Nivra Lainhart, Stacy York and Jacqueline Noland have coined their campaign "Revive River Drive" and admit they are shocked at the support the community has offered them. York said the idea for Revive River Drive came from the women reminiscing about times in the 90s when they were younger and would spend

School board discusses new drop-off traffic patterns at KY 89

By KYLE WOOSLEY
KPA Summer Intern

The Estill County Board of Education discussed a traffic control system for the upcoming school year with the addition of the new KY 89 at its July meeting. Randall Christopher, assistant superintendent, made a presentation regarding the plan for routing incoming and outgoing traffic to the high school and middle school for the upcoming school year. "It's just a lot of traffic in an area for a short period of time," Christopher said. "Hopefully with things spread out, things will run a little smoother." Parents and busses dropping children off at Estill County High School will be routed off new KY 89, around the high school and onto old KY 89. Vehicles will then follow old KY 89 back onto new KY 89. (SEE MAP) "Hopefully the flow will be pretty simple because it's all one way," Christopher said. Estill County Middle School drop-off will now simply be routed from the new KY 89. (SEE MAP) "The middle school, I think, is going to flow 10 times better," Christopher said. Christopher said if parents need to drop off children at both schools, it makes it simple as they can just drop their children off at the middle school, get back onto the new KY 89 and turn right into the high school drop-off. "If a parent has to drop off a kid at the high school too, it makes it fairly simple," Christopher said. Christopher said most of the dif-

The drawing above depicts the new traffic patterns for student drop-off at ECHS and ECMS. The changes are necessary because of a new section of KY 89. The new drop-off route will require parents to travel around the high school down the old KY 89 and then be re-routed back onto the new strip of the road.

ficulty will probably come from the intersection of the old and new KY 89. "As the year progresses, you get less and less people driving to school and less and less pickups," Christopher said. "Hopefully it flows a little better." Chairperson Jami Price did express some concern about keeping an officer on the main road directing traffic without school signs.

“The building was abandoned,” he said. “It’s been sitting there empty forever, no one has any dealings with it on a regular basis, no electric runs to it and there weren’t any storms in the area.”

Muncie said the three building structure that included a barn, a garage and a small 15x12 house, was a complete loss.

Firefighters initially thought the fire had damaged a power line.

Muncie confirmed the damaged line was a cable line. The cable company that owns the line was contacted immediately and was able to fix the line.

A fire investigator has been notified but Muncie is not sure when the investigation of this fire will begin.

“The investigator covers 11 counties,” he said. “He does the investigations by priority.”

Muncie said this means it could be several weeks before the investigation begins.

hours cruising River Drive.

“We were all good friends in school,” she said. “We started talking about getting together and then talked about how we wished we could cruise River Drive just one more time.”

York remembers a time when traffic on River Drive would be “bumper-to-bumper.”

The group decided they would make their own attempt to liven up River Drive and started the campaign with a Facebook page that quickly gained popularity.

“We just wanted to see if anyone else was interested,” York said. “Now, everyone keeps posting memories and even videos of songs they remember cruising to back then.”

Lainhart said the planning for the event is still in the beginning phases but thinks it could be a strong step in the right direction for bringing more for people to do in the community.

“When I think back, this [cruising River Drive] is something that most generations have in common,” she said. “You’ve got to start somewhere. We’re hoping eventually there could be something more because of this.”

Lainhart said the Revive River Drive might be the first step to doing so because it’s something they hope to keep simple and small-scale.

Citizens have been discussing the event and how to make it happen and had an organizational meeting at Pizza Palace last week. Another meeting is scheduled for Friday, July 27, at Pizza Palace.

The meetings are meant to get more input about the event and to confirm activities and participation for the event.

A major aspect of the event is the group’s desire to help promote the businesses on River Drive. They have asked businesses to participate by staying open during the event and even offering activities or sales for the people cruising.

“We want people to know we’re not looking to make any money,” Lainhart said. “We just want to promote community togetherness.”

The group stresses the importance of getting people in the community together for events and offering activities for the people of Estill County. They said the event is their attempt at doing just that.

“This event is all about the businesses and getting people out there,” York said. “It’s not about us.”

The event, scheduled to begin at 5 p.m. and last until 10 p.m. September 1, is expected to have some live music, activities and a memorial.

Joe Crawford, executive director of Estill Development Alliance, said he appreciates the efforts the group is making.

“I was immediately excited when I heard about this and wanted to know more,” he said. “These are regular citizens who want to do something good and support local business.”

Crawford remembers his own days of cruising and said the event is a good way to show kids today what generations of the past did for fun.

“Most little towns have somewhere that people cruise, park and talk,” he said. “People used to drive back and forth and flash their lights to signal they wanted another person to pull over and talk with them.”

He remembers stopping at The Twin or grabbing a pizza roll and an Ale 8 from Fill Zone. He said businesses like the Wig Wam and The Twin have already shown support for the event and are eager to know more about what will be taking place.

“It’s really going to be a nice little community event with good, clean fun,” he said. “If we can do this and have it go well, we can move on to bigger, better things.”

Anyone interested in participating, planning or seeking more information is encouraged to “like” the Revive River Drive Facebook page and attend the organizational meetings.

Vice Chair Patti Hood said she worries about vehicles speeding on the newly black-topped highway.

“Now I feel like they drive faster with that new black top,” Hood said.

Christopher said with the additional length of the road, things should be running smoothly within the first few weeks of school.

Construction on West Irvine Elementary School has experienced some difficulties which will result in some delays.

“The sad part is we had hoped to have the front opened before school starts,” Christopher said.

Because of holds on materials needed for its completion, the front portion of the school will not be opened until Aug. 27 or “some-time after Labor Day,” Christopher said.

“We’ll have to start West Irvine in the back, just like we were at the end of last year,” Christopher said.

However, Christopher said the rest of the construction is going just fine and encourages everybody in the community to visit.

“If you get a chance, I encourage anybody to go inside that building,” Christopher said. “It’s really a good aspect to the school system.”

Butch Hardy, owner of Hardy Oil, presented the Estill County High School Beta Club with a $6,000 check.

The money is from a grant, sponsored by Hardy Oil, which will go toward assisting the Beta Club with their backpack buddies program.

Amy Farmer, Beta Club sponsor, said the program strives to do “anything extra to make them [students] feel like somebody’s looking out for them.”

Last year, Farmer said the ECHS Beta Club fed 75 students each week.

“With our small community and small high school, it’s very difficult to feed 75 kids a week,” Farmer said.

Superintendent Bert Hensley said the program helps “bridge that gap” between privileged and underprivileged students.

“Just to see one smile’s worth it,” Hensley said.

In other business, the board approved the following:

- Treasurer’s report/payment of bills
- Acknowledge notification of personnel actions
- Second reading of policy and procedure updates
- SE/SC cooperative membership
- Bid for middle school water heaters

The next school board meeting will be Aug. 16.

Laws don't matter to outlaws, do they?

By LISA BICKNELL
CV&T Staff Writer

Our whole nation has been open-mouthed with horror since Friday morning's massacre in Aurora, CO. We feel sick, unable to comprehend why anyone would want to wound and kill like that. As I write, I sit in my worn old rocker on the front porch and gaze at a pastoral scene. Birds chirp and sing. A fan hums. Old Glory waves gently in the breeze. The grass is lush and green, and everything looks peaceful. Even in idyllic surroundings, though, there are reminders that violence is a part of life. A hawk snatches up a young martin just learning to fly. Cats hunt mice and ground squirrels. I cringe when they catch them, but I know that's their nature. Their instinct is to survive, to feed themselves. Still, that doesn't explain why a brilliant young man would plot for weeks and months to take the lives of an unsuspecting group of people in a movie theater. Such incidences stir fear in our hearts. We know they could happen anywhere. The discussion of gun control is renewed every time something like this happens. Some believe assault weapons should be banned entirely. Others think that even handguns should be banned. Gun-rights seem as American as apple pie to most rural folk, where nearly every household keeps a gun or two for hunting and killing snakes or other wild animals that threaten us or our livestock. And yes, for self-defense. I don't see why anyone outside of a war zone really needs an assault weapon, but I understand that there are those who use them for sporting purposes, in shooting competitions and such. Unfortunately, banning certain types of guns will not get rid of them. Criminals will find a way if they want them. Prohibition didn't end drinking, bootleggers flourish in dry counties, people take illegal drugs all the time. That was my thinking until I read an article online in The Atlantic which pointed out that Japan has eliminated nearly all gun-related homicides by enforcing very strict gun laws. In 1958, laws were passed in Japan stating that no one could own a firearm. Later, some exceptions were made, but citizens still aren't allowed to own most types of guns. The process to obtain permits for shotguns and air guns is long and complicated. People are required to undergo mental health and drug testing to own a gun. To possess a gun without going through the proper procedures can mean a 10-year prison sentence. According to the article, Japan had as few as two gun-related homicides in 2006. Typically, they average less than a couple of dozen each year. That's a pretty incredible claim. Are we that much more of a violent society than they are? It would appear so. The article says that we had over 12,000 gun-related homicides in 2008 and more than 500 deaths by accidental discharge. Apparently Japanese residents are willing to sacrifice more personal freedoms to maintain a peaceful state, but their public places are safe. Are Americans willing to do that? Somehow, I doubt it. I see can both sides of the gun-control issue; however, I still don't think that guns themselves are the problem. Nearly everyone I know owns a gun, and they don't use them against each other. Maybe Americans need to consider a deeper issue. Why are so many people bent on killing each other, and what can we do about that?

"Unfortunately, banning certain types of guns will not get rid of them. Criminals will find a way if they want them."

Summer intern bids farewell to EC

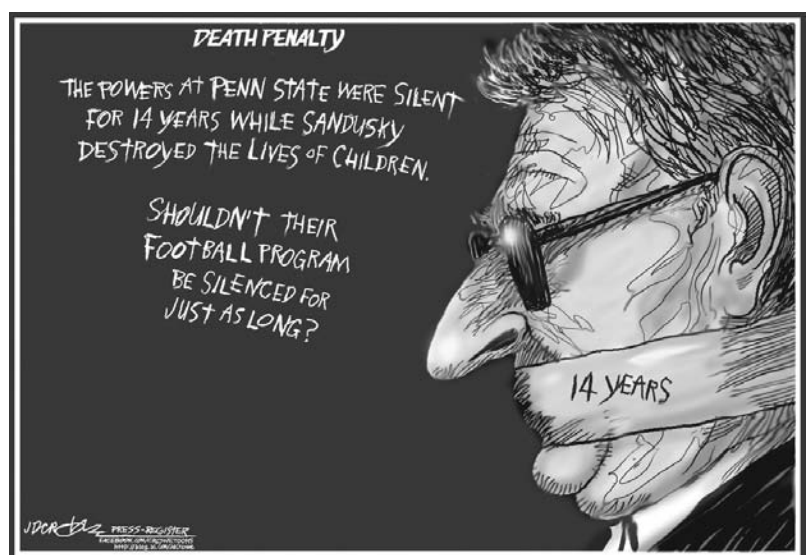

By KYLE WOOSLEY
KPA Summer Intern

Well, the time has come for me to bid Estill County farewell. That's right, my summer internship with the Citizen Voice & Times has come to an end. Though I'm sad to be leaving the community, I am proud of all that I have accomplished and learned here at the CV&T. Having this opportunity has taught me more than years of education at Eastern Kentucky University ever could. Throughout my years of college, and my previous experiences working with campus newspapers, I had always seen the world of journalism from a narrow point of view. "Scooping" your competition with stories of crime or government was always where I pictured a career in this field taking me. But spending these 10 weeks in Estill County has taught me there's a lot more to journalism than that. When I was accepted into the intern position at the CV&T, I was not sure what to expect. Growing up with a family that spent a lot of time traveling the world didn't exactly give me a sense of community. I could never go into the grocery store and strike up conversation with a familiar face down the aisle or really get to see the faces behind the local public officials. It wasn't until a few weeks ago when I realized I had done just that in this very town. Every week when I walked into the court house I was greeted by familiar faces, faces I have grown accustomed to seeing. I got used to seeing the ladies at the circuit clerk's office every Monday afternoon. While attending local meetings and community events, I soon realized there were those who I just expected to be there and converse with. Working here has integrated me into the community in ways I never expected. And for that, I'm grateful. It has taught me a lot and allowed me to broaden my perspective of what the term journalism really means. During my time here, I have had my fair share of memorable experiences that I would like to comment on as well. When I was first hired here, current and previous news editors Whitney Leggett and Rhonda Smyth agreed that I would write a weekly column. Within one month, I received my first piece of what I like to call "hate mail." It was regarding my column about the homosexual man who killed himself and the double standard society places on the LGBT community. And I was tickled. It was only last week that I received yet another piece of "hate mail" regarding my stance on the legalization of marijuana. To me, "hate mail" isn't a bad thing. It means I'm getting my opinion out there, whether people agree with it or not. And the fact that people are writing letters to the editor regarding columns I have written just means they're paying attention. Even this act of disagreement made me feel like I was a genuine asset to the community. Another assignment I was given was to cover the Class of 1962's 50-year high school reunion. At the annual sock hop to help kick-off the reunion weekend, I was asked to dance by a woman whose husband had passed away. And I took the opportunity to dance my little white boy tail off like it was 1962. And finally, there was the fair. If there's one thing I've learned working with a community newspaper, it's that fair week is THE week. And even though it was hectic with all the pageants, baby shows and talent contests, it was one of the most enjoyable weeks I had because I was able to bond with people in the community. While I've been here, I had covered my fair share of crime and government meetings, but those aren't what have really stuck with me. What I'm going to remember the most is being welcomed into a community like I never have before and feeling like I'm part of something important to the people in it. I would like to thank Rhonda Smyth for taking a chance on hiring me. It's not an opportunity I have taken for granted. And even though I did not get to work with her long, she got me in the door and I hope I lived up to the expectations she had for me. Next, I'd like to thank Whitney Leggett for teaching me pretty much everything. From the day I met her at The Eastern Progress I knew she would grow to become a lot more than a co-worker, but a friend. She tested my abilities as a journalist and gave me skills that I will utilize even more in the upcoming year. To her, I owe more than I can give in a column. But most importantly, I'd like to thank the people of Estill County for welcoming me with open arms. The ladies at the circuit clerk's office, the folks at the sheriff's office, all of the officials at town meetings and just the community in general have made me feel at home. I hope you all have enjoyed me just as much as I've enjoyed being here. This is what I said in my first column: "I look forward to leaving my mark on this town." And I think I have.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I firmly disagree with Kyle Woosley's statement that "marijuana is not a terrible thing." I have personally seen and heard of many terrible things that have been the result of people smoking marijuana from Vietnam to Estill County. Generally, people who smoke it are also on other drugs. Besides, are we not trying to discourage people from inhaling smoke into their lungs? The 'do-gooders' are trying to beat smokers to death and yet they let the media advertise and glorify drinking. Kids are watching these alcohol commercials also. Every day the news carries stories about car wrecks and deaths because of drivers being impaired by alcohol and drugs, or both. If you legalize medical marijuana the drug-pushing doctors will be passing our prescriptions for it like candy.

7-16 ECSO Deputy Karl Rifenbark reported between June 1 and June 30, James Collins, 31, of Rockaway Road, sold stolen property to C&S Recycling in Irvine. Collins allegedly sold four car batteries, coated copper wire, an electric motor and several dozens of pounds of other materials including brass, steel and other motors. The total value of the property is $2,000. Collins was arrested by Kentucky State Police Officer Sutton. Bond was set at $2,500 cash.

7-20 Tim Ward, site manager of Rite Aid,

Dudley is charged with criminal mischief, third degree.

7-21 Jon M. Southern, 24, of Hargett Road, was arrested on five charges by ECSO Deputy Randy Farthing. Farthing reported he found Farthing said he had to ask three times before Southern agreed to put the knife down. He was unsteady on his feet and his pupils were constricted. Southern resisted arrest, threatened Farthing's life, broke the door handles and tore computer wiring from under the passenger's seat of the cruiser. He is being charged with fourth degree assault with minor injury, public intoxication of a controlled substance, resisting arrest, third degree terroristic threatening and first degree criminal mischief. "No one was more surprised than me when my summer and winter electric bills dropped by half..."

Carson Smith of Clay County was tired of paying what he knew were too-high electric bills and by making his home more energy efficient, he cut those bills nearly in half!

"When I could look around the frame of my back door and literally see outside I knew I was paying a lot of unnecessary dollars trying to heat my backyard," said Smith. "I knew I was bound to be losing a lot of my cool air in the summertime, too. That's why I decided to call Jackson Energy."

Irvine City Council continues discussion of old city hall

By WHITNEY LEGGETT

CV&T News Editor

The Irvine City Council continued discussion of how to move forward on the old city hall building that it currently owns.

At the June meeting Councilman Billy Arthur told the council the man who had previously won the bid on the property with the intention of opening a business there chose to open at another location.

Arthur said he told him he may still be interested in the property but he couldn't continue to wait to close on the property because he needed to open his business as soon as possible.

Councilman Tim Burkhart, who was absent from the meeting in which Arthur discussed these issues with the council, asked if there was a way to begin advertising the property again.

County Attorney Rodney Davis said he wasn't sure about beginning to advertise for bids again because of his concerns with the previous bid winner.

"As far as I'm concerned, we advertised, he bid and we won that bid," he said. "He's closed on it and now he's saying he doesn't want it."

Arthur agreed to discuss the issue further to confirm whether the previous bid winner was still interested.

Burkhart suggested the council begin advertising in the month of August in local publications and in areas the council had not previously considered advertising. He suggested looking into trade publications like the Kentucky League of Cities and even real estate listings on websites like Craigslist.

"We could take the chance and advertise one more time before we decide to tear it down," he said.

Councilman Tobo Bryant advised the council to set a time frame for the advertising and potential sale of the property.

"If it's not sold in this time frame, then we need to go into discussion about how much it would cost to put it to the ground," he said.

The council also voted to allow Brian Kirby with Community and Economic Development Associates of Richmond to begin research about a housing project in Irvine.

Kirby told the council at its last meeting about the housing project which would be similar to that which is underway in Ravenna. He asked the council to allow him to look into potential homeowners to participate in the project and establish which grant funding would best suit the people's needs.

The council voted at the last meeting to table the discussion until Davis was present to discuss any potential legal issues with the project. Davis said he saw nothing to be worried about with the project and the council agreed unanimously.

In other business the council discussed citing homeowners for not adhering to city ordinances concerning the upkeep of their property.

Irvine Division of Police Chief Brad Smith said he continuously checks into homes of concern. He issued to the council a packet of information detailing the notices and citations he has issued recently for such problems.

Arthur said he was thankful Smith was being persistent about making people follow the laws concerning taking care of their property.

"We've been patient long enough," he said. "It's time to take a stand and do something about the houses in Irvine that aren't taken care of. Some of these homes are on the verge of being condemned."

Davis said all of the right ordinances are in place and taking action is the most important thing.

"You have a nuisance ordinance and zoning ordinances," he said. "Now, it's about buckling down and citing homeowners for property that isn't maintained."

Irvine Mayor Earnest Farmer called it an "ongoing battle" to force homeowners to maintain their property. He said it's not easy to make people live at the same standard that you would like them to.

Local students help build Habitat for Humanity home

On July 14, Louisville Mayor Greg Fischer joined Habitat for Humanity of Metro Louisville at 2609 West Madison Street in the Russell neighborhood to celebrate construction of the organization's 377th home in the Louisville area.

Local high school students from the Governor's Scholars Program constructed the home in four weeks. Established in 1983, the Governor's Scholars Program celebrated its 30th summer in Kentucky by partnering with Habitat for Humanity to build the home as a service project.

Participating local students include:

Irvine resident Chantelle Bottom, who attends Lee County High School

Irvine resident Erin Combs, who attends Estill County High School

This project supports the Governor's Scholars Program's mission to nurture Kentucky's future civic and economic leaders. This summer, 360 Governor's Scholars lived and studied on Bellarmine University's campus. The students, representing 93 Kentucky counties, joined the 50 members of the program's faculty and staff to volunteer 2,025 hours to build the house.

The new homeowners, Omar Muse and Ubah Adan, are originally from Somalia. They completed more than 400 sweat equity hours by working on their home and the homes of others as a requirement for becoming Habitat homeowners.

ENCOURAGING WORD: SEIZE OPPORTUNITY

Howard Coop

told us, was simple. It involved living in readiness to seize opportunities for growth and development whenever those opportunities knocked. That important lesson was not from a textbook or from a lesson plan that the teacher had prepared. It came from her heart, for she often went beyond textbooks and lesson plans to remind those of us who were her students of that and other important lessons about life

It occurred many years ago when I was in the first grade. But after all of those years have passed, I have not forgotten it; I still remember it vividly.

Encouraging a group of elementary students in a one roomed country school, a good teacher reminded those of us who were her students that we could grow up to be whatever we desired to be. The key to that accomplishment, she she thought we needed.

Through the years, I remembered the encouraging words and the sound advice of that good teacher, and her words encouraged me and helped me to move ahead in the right direction in life. Then, one day I was pleasantly surprised; her words became even more meaningful to me. I was reading a letter, an old one that is almost two thousand years old, that had been written to a small group of people living in Ephesus, a large commercial seaport city in the Roman province of Asia. In that letter, the author, a good friend and trusted leader, urged those to whom he wrote to “Be very careful, then, how you live---not as unwise but as wise.” Then, he admonished them to make “the most of every opportunity” that presented itself to them. In the difficult times and under the trying circumstances in which they lived, such living would give stability and bring needed direction to their lives.

An anonymous individual said that we do not have to “wait for opportunity to come; it’s already here.” But another anonymous individual said that it “is often lost by deliberation.” Therefore, seize it and use it.

Marching Engineers prepare for season

LIFESTYLE

Sweet or sour, it’s all good

By LISA BICKNELL
CV&T Staff Writer

Last summer I had more zucchini than I knew what to do with...this summer it’s the yellow summer squash that are taking over.

So far, I’ve added it to stir-fries and casseroles and I’ve made relish. Like zucchini, the yellow squash is pretty bland-tasting and takes on the flavors of whatever you team it up with. Of course, I’ve breaded and fried it a time or two.

I’ll probably put some in salsa later. It adds a nice chunkiness to it...and more color and nutrition.

I noticed a facebook post recently that reminded me of how Mom used to prepare squash when I was growing up. Except she typically did winter squashes this way—acorn, butternut, cushaw, etc.

A facebook friend said she fries squash with brown sugar and butter.

I grabbed a couple of the yellow squash that I had left over from farmers’ market (didn’t sell a one today—everybody’s got ‘em), and I sliced them into a pan with two or three thick pats of butter that I’d melted.

I sautéed the squash a few minutes, then I sprinkled (dumped) two or three generous spoonfuls of brown sugar on top of that. I covered it for a while until the squash became soft and visibly mushy, flipping it all occasionally with a spatula and allowing some of it to brown a little bit.

Sounds like a recipe to me!

I burned my tongue tasting it—it smelled so good I couldn’t wait. Don’t you just hate that?

“Slow down, Miss Piggy,” I chided myself.

The sweetened buttered squash was good—but something was missing. I added a liberal dash of salt.

And I burnt my tongue again! Mmmm...the brown sugar sauce had a yummy salted caramel taste.

I sprinkled some fresh-ground cinnamon on top of some of it—and found that didn’t hurt a thing either.

There’s nothing fancy about this dish, but it’s really good—and yet another way to use summer squash.

We’ve talked sweet, now let’s do sour.

I’m planning to give these refrigerator pickles a try next week. I can’t seem to get enough ahead on my cucumbers to make pickles with them, so I think I’ll try this recipe adapted from “The Homesick Texan Cookbook” by Lisa Fain.

Summer Squash Pickles

(1 Quart)

1 lb yellow squash and 1 lb zucchini, sliced into 1/4-inch rounds
4 cloves garlic, cut in half
2 teaspoons dill seeds
2 teaspoons cumin seeds
2 teaspoons celery seeds
2 teaspoons black pepper corns
2 cups white vinegar
2 tablespoons kosher salt

Divide the sliced squash, zucchini, and garlic cloves and pack into the jars. Add to the jars the dill seeds, cumin seeds, celery seeds, and peppercorns, placing 1 teaspoon in each pint jar.

Bring to a boil the vinegar, salt, and 1/2 cup of water. Pour the boiling vinegar mixture into the jars, leaving a bit of head-space. Cover with lids and fasten with rings. Allow to cool and then refrigerate. They will be ready after 4 hours and will last for 1 month in the refrigerator.

Now, let’s talk sweet again.

Our little Clay has been home a month already!

This month has sped by faster than any other, I think, probably because we are having so much fun spoiling him.

Clay is growing like the weeds in our garden after all the recent rains. But, just as importantly, he’s content and happy almost all the time. He seems to feel good...and that makes us feel good.

He’s so observant and curious, and we have such fun introducing him to new sights and sounds.

He’s got two teeth now, and the way he gnaws on his fist, it probably won’t be long until he has more.

Yep, our boy’s doing well!

Wolpert graduates from Center for Rural Development

Estill County High School student Kayla Wolpert has graduated from this summer's second class of The Center for Rural Development's 2012 Rogers Scholars youth leadership program.

The Rogers Scholars program—The Center's flagship youth program—provides leadership and exclusive scholarship opportunities for rising high school juniors in Southern and Eastern Kentucky and encourages graduates to build their careers in the region.

"Rogers Scholars has been an experience of a lifetime," said Wolpert. "I have made so many life-long friends, and this program has certainly changed my life."

The second, and final, summer session of Rogers Scholars was held July 8-13 on the grounds of The Center in Somerset.

Lonnie Lawson, president and CEO of The Center, and Delaney Stephens, youth programs coordinator and community liaison, presented certificates of completion to Rogers Scholars graduates on the final day of the program during an awards ceremony and graduation program at The Center.

"The Rogers Scholars program is changing the lives of young people all across Southern and Eastern Kentucky," Lawson said. "Rogers Scholars graduates—some of our best and brightest students in the region—are our future leaders and entrepreneurs and hope for a brighter tomorrow."

Students apply during their sophomore year and attend the Rogers Scholars program before the start of their junior year in high school.

"The second, and final, graduating class of the 2012 Rogers Scholars program showed leadership capabilities that are a promising sign of what this region can look forward to in the future," said Stephens. "Each one of these Scholars will impact their communities through their leadership skills and the community service mindset they possess."

Wolpert is the daughter of Kim and Lee Wolpert Jr. of Irvine.

Graduates of the program also earn access to exclusive college scholarship offers from some of the state's top-ranked colleges and universities.

The premium of the insurance policy shall then be charged to the purchaser as purchaser’s cost.
